27 July 2026 | 3.15pm

Slievenamon wildfire remains stable as monitoring continues

There has been no significant change in the status of the Slievenamon wildfire incident since the previous update. Emergency services and response agencies remain actively engaged on site, with the overall situation remaining stable. Crews continue to monitor and address a small number of isolated hot spots as part of the ongoing response operation.

Emergency services are continuing to monitor smoke activity. In many instances, smoke flare-ups are occurring as a result of changing and swirling wind conditions, together with the ongoing water dampening and suppression activities being carried out on the mountain. All reported incidents are being assessed and dealt with as required.

Members of the public can be reassured that there remains no risk to lives or property arising from the incident. Emergency services will continue to maintain a presence in the area, monitor conditions closely and respond to any developments as necessary.

Further updates will be provided as information becomes available.
